

Why does image print different than what is on the screen?

The resolution of a monitor is 72 ppi (pixels per inch). Pixels tell how much color information to put into each inch of a monitor. A print on paper requires about four times more pixels per inch than a monitor.

Printing a image on paper; use 230ppi
An image for the web; use 72ppi